Exercise 3: Rewrite in spanish

When I was a child, I spent most of my summers at my grandparents' house in the countryside. Every morning, my grandfather would get up early to tend to the garden, and my grandmother would make us a big breakfast with fresh fruit and homemade bread. After breakfast, we would go for long walks in the fields, picking wildflowers and talking about everything. Sometimes, my cousins would come to visit, and we would spend the whole day playing games outside. We would build forts in the woods, go fishing by the river, and swim in the lake.

In the evenings, we would sit on the porch, watching the sunset while my grandfather played the guitar and my grandmother told stories about her childhood. It was a simple life, but it felt so peaceful and full of happiness. During the winter months, when we couldn't go outside as much, we would stay inside by the fire, playing board games, reading books, or baking cookies together. I always looked forward to those days, as they were filled with love and warmth.

I remember those times fondly, and I often wish I could go back to those days when life seemed much simpler.
